

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is directed to a duplication controlling method for controlling duplication by embedding an electronic watermark indicating duplication-related control information into contents comprising digital information, wherein the electronic watermark includes change position information indicating a change position of the contents of the control information.